1. Enforcement of Labour Laws:-
With growth in the dimensions and variety of industrial activity, the task of labour administration has become increasingly difficult. It calls for comprehension, sensitivity, expedition and efficiency at every stage. To enable industries to be competitive in the present context and at the same time to protect the rights of workers, labour administration has to provide an effective industrial relations system. On the enforcement side, labour administration has to ensure effective enforcement of labour laws. Since Independence, in addition to Industrial Disputes Act, a number of other laws have been enacted by Parliament and the State Legislature to protect rights of workers and provide for their welfare. Many of the laws are being enforced by the Labour Department.

This Institute periodically conducts Training Programmes, Seminars, Refresher Courses, Orientation Programmes, etc., to suit the needs of supervisory and managerial personnel of private and public sector industries, Trade Unionists and officials of Labour & Factories Departments.

4) Inspections of Factories by the Inspectorate:-

The Factories Act, 1948 regulates the safety, health and welfare of the workers in factories. The factories which are certified as Small Scale Industries and which are not engaged in any dangerous operation are inspected only once in a period of five years, provided no complaint is received either from the workers or from the Trade Unions in respect of Safety, Health, Welfare or other work related matters. However, those industries which are involved in any dangerous operations, though certified as Small Scale Industries, are inspected once in every six months, so as to ensure health and safety of the workers. Similarly, Match and Fire Works factories are inspected once in every three months because of the high risk involved in the nature of work. Apart from this routine inspection, special, holiday and check inspections are also undertaken for better monitoring of the safety, health and welfare provisions. Thus, the Factories Inspectorate, by way of its effective enforcement regularly monitors the safety, health, welfare and better working conditions of the workers.

This Scheme came into force with effect from 1.11.1952. The Employees' Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 is applicable to factories and establishments engaged in 180 specified industries / classes of establishments. At present, an employee who is in receipt of pay upto Rs.6500/- per month is eligible for membership of the fund.
